

ABOUT YOU

Words & Music: Inga Rumpf

Today I want to write a new song again
But I almost wrote about everything
Songs of heart and soul from A to Z
I run out of words eventually

Shall I write about life from nine to nine
Should I put my feelings to a rhyme
And suddenly – when I was onstage
I found the clue - I'll write a song

About you, about you, about you
'Cause I can rely on you

One night you stood in front of me
The show was over, it was time to leave
You were holding a poster I should sign
On your boyish face glowed a shine

Now almost fifty years gone by
Your long mane turned into a short hairstyle
You know all my songs and you sing along
Like you always do - when you hear this song I wrote

About you, about you, about you
'Cause I can rely on you

Now, i sn't it great - together we grow old
Our bones are creaking and we're getting bald
You became something of a friend,
Extended family and part of the band

You followed me right from the start
You're a true lover of my art
Without you, without a tune
What would we do? That's why I write this song

About you, about you (So good things about you, oh yeah!)

You sent me photos
By e-mail
And you help us
With the CD-sale

To my birthday
You send a surprise
Without you, oh
What would we do? That's why I write this song

About you, about you, about you
'Cause I can rely on you
